

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

L'Arche Greater Washington, D.C., Inc., and L'Arche Homes for Life, Inc., ended fiscal year 2009 on September 30 with a surplus of $374,299 and net assets of $3,350,637. The surplus was used to complete construction of our fourth home in fiscal year 2010.

A complete audited financial statement is available upon request.

Summary of L'Arche's FY 2009
Audited Statement:

Revenue and Expenses

Revenue
Government Contracts	$1,336,942	62%
Grants and Contributions	$768,172	36%
Investments and Other Income	$56,463	2%
Total Revenue	$2,161,577
Expenses
Homes Program	$1,425,425	80%
Other Programs	$114,971	6%
Administration	$105,191	6%
Fundraising	$142,691	8%
Total Expenses	$1,787,278
Change in Net Assets	$374,299

Balance Sheet

Assets
Current Assets	$1,468,129
Long-Term Assets	$4,252,841
Total Assets	$5,720,970
Liabilities
Current Liabilities	$301,618
Long-term Liabilities	$2,068,715
Total Liabilities	$2,370,333
Net Assets	$3,350,637

THANK YOU TO THE GENEROUS FOUNDATIONS, CORPORATIONS, AND ORGANIZATIONS THAT SUPPORTED
L'ARCHE DURING FISCAL YEAR 2010

Altrusa International of Washington, D.C.	Loyola University in Maryland
America's Charities	Magruder & Associates, P.C.
Bank of America	Mary and Daniel Loughran Foundation
Blessed Sacrament Catholic Church	Merrill Lynch Trust Company
Capital Group Companies Charitable Foundation	National Baptist Memorial Church
Catalogue for Philanthropy	Network for Good
Catholic Diocese of Lansing	Our Lady of Victory Church
Chapman Foundation	Our Lady Queen of Peace Church
Charles Engelhard Foundation	Paschal Lamb Co.
Community Foundation for the National Capital Region	Robert Bensen Meyer Jr. Foundation, Inc.
Corner Bakery	Saint Francis of Assisi Church
Covington & Burling LLP	Seekers Church
Deborah Justice Editing	Shrine of the Most Blessed Sacrament
Dulin United Methodist Church	Special Friends Foundation
Eighth Day Faith Community	St. Agnes Catholic Church
Feinstein Family Fund	St. Irenaeus Church
Festival Church	St. Peter's at the Light
Gannett Company	The Order of Malta, Federal Association—USA
GE Foundation	United Way of the National Capital Area
Good Search	University of Notre Dame
Hatcher Design Office	Washington Forrest Foundation
Holy Trinity Catholic Church	Washington Management Corporation Foundation
Jewish Communal Fund	William S. Abell Foundation
Jubilee Church	World Bank Community Connections Fund
KOVAR
Leonard Neale House
Lewinsville Presbyterian Church
Little Brothers and Sisters of the Eucharist

HEART OF L'ARCHE SOCIETY

SERVANT LEADERSHIP CIRCLE Taylor Family

ADVOCACY CIRCLE

Elizabeth Black and John Cook The Charles Engelhard Foundation

COMPANION CIRCLE

Kathryn and Shep Abell	Janice and Jerald Jacobs
Anonymous	Deborah Justice and Giuseppe Fina
Colette and Peter Arntson	Mary Kasper
Elise and Martin Baach	Steve and Bethany Keener
Constance U. Battle	Jay and Ann Killeen
Jane and Kevin Belford	Victor and Michelle Maddux
David and Cathey Belli	David and Carrie Marriott
Barbara and Matthew Black	George Maynard
Michele and James Bowe	Jeanne McDermott
Steve Callahan and Christine Madigan	Susan Miller
Jerry and Joy Choppin	Mark Miskovsky and Kathleen Curtin
Lisa and Mac Cosgrove-Davies	Michael and Ellen Morrell
Mimi and Chris Dorment	Trina Myers
Claire Cunningham and Philip Ward	Kate and Mike Nolan
Thomas Duffy	Our Lady of Victory Catholic Church
Hope Farrior and David Wiley	Sarah E. Roque
Lauren and Jonathan Ford	Karen and Doug Rumble
Oscar and Ellen Garcia	Virginia Schofield and Peter Hakim
Diana and Bill Garner	Lila and Brendan Sullivan
Joan and Norman Glasgow	Roberta and Richard Theis
Richard Gonzales and Linda Campanelli	Jane and Thomas Wilner
Alison Gramann and Andrew Willis	Nancy Withbroe and Paul Smolinsky
Frank and Katelin Haney	Ann and Mal Young
Brian Healy

The Heart of L'Arche Society is a group of donors who make five-year pledges: Companion Circle $1,000+, Advocacy Circle $10,000+, and Servant Leadership Circle $25,000+. To learn more about joining this group, or about planning a legacy gift, contact Bethany Keener at 202.507.1328

L'Arche Greater Washington, D.C.

P.O. Box 21471 | Washington, DC 20009
202.232.4539 | www.larchewashingtondc.org

Growing Together
L'ARCHE GREATER WASHINGTON D.C.
ANNUAL REPORT 2010

Pierre Sanders, Eva Hernandez, and Jen Vigario joined the L'Arche community in 2010.
Photo: Bethany Keener

Photo: Daniel Zündorf

Kristen Collins, Mary Ruppert, Eileen Schofield, Fritz Schloss, and Daniel Zündorf collapse after a pillow fight.

The most exciting growth is the change in individuals.

DOTTIE BOCKSTIEGEL,
FOUNDING L'ARCHE BOARD MEMBER

DEAR FRIENDS,

This year marked a new era for L'Arche Greater Washington, D.C. The growth we envisioned more than a decade ago has finally been completed with the construction of our newest home, located in Arlington, Virginia. We welcomed four new core people and their companions to our community in August.

While we're excited to be reaching more people, we also recognize that growth isn't just about numbers—it's about developing as individuals. That can mean cooking spaghetti or going down a waterslide for the first time, learning a new skill like photography, using a cell phone to gain independence, deepening friendships, and taking time to nurture our inner lives.

This year we also saw growth toward a sustainable financial future. To date, we have fifty members in our Heart of L'Arche Society, a group of donors who pledge $1,000 or more a year for five years.

Thank you for helping us grow.

John M. Cook
John Cook Executive Director

We're a loving family. That's what I like, and that's what God wants.
CHARLES CLARK, L'ARCHE REPRESENTATIVE

BUILDING COMMUNITY

Ivo Spalitan recalls what he and the other founding board members had in mind when L'Arche opened its first home in 1983. "We were intent on providing each resident with a community-based, permanent home environment," he said. "Issues of expansion, while great, could only happen with such a base."

Dottie Bockstiegel, a founding board member who lived in L'Arche for twenty-four years, saw this base established. "The core people have grown in their sense of self and value in society," she says, "and each year I see tremendous growth in the assistants' sense of building community."

When it came time to build a fourth home, L'Arche took painstaking care in the construction—wide hallways, an elevator, and a kitchen sink low enough to be used by someone seated in a wheelchair. The home was designed to be a place where community could grow in any room.

Charles Clark, who moved into the new home in August, enjoys having a spacious room to himself and a prayer room for quiet reflection. But what drew him to L'Arche was the quality of relationships. "I have more love here," he says. That love is manifest in the freedom he has to go out when he pleases, attend parties, see movies, and have guests over for dinner. And when things aren't perfect? "We work it out." To Charles, L'Arche feels like family.

Photo: Bethany Keener

Charles Clark and Tristan Keener make applesauce.

Gene Sampson celebrates his 80th birthday with Kathleen Kang.

Photo: Keira Klein

It was so special for me to see how dedicated L'Arche is to providing care and comfort to another human being.

ROSA HARRIS, PHYSICAL THERAPIST, NATIONAL REHABILITATION HOSPITAL

SERVING OTHERS

Though L'Arche assistants are not medical professionals, they are trained to administer medication and to recognize potential medical conditions. One evening at dinner, assistant Ellen Green noticed Gene Sampson was having difficulty talking and was experiencing weakness on his left side.

Gene's CAT scan at the emergency room revealed he'd suffered two strokes. He was admitted to the hospital and later to National Rehabilitation Hospital for several weeks of intense therapy.

For the next month, L'Arche assistants accompanied him to multiple occupational, speech, and physical therapy appointments. Not a day went by without a visitor, and when Gene turned eighty, L'Arche staked out a corner of the hospital cafeteria and celebrated with cake and balloons.

"As a community we have been talking about, learning about, and adapting to the changing physical needs of our core people—especially those who are aging," says Bob Jacobs, home-life coordinator at Euclid House.

The additional training the assistants went through to be equipped to care for Gene when he returned home prompted tremendous professional growth. The household routine now includes Gene's two exercise sessions and more medications, but everyone is happy to have him home where he belongs.

The way L'Arche integrates core people into society breaks down barriers and misimpressions. By doing that they're changing the world.

BILL ZAVARELLO,
L'ARCHE NEIGHBOR AND FRIEND

CHANGING SOCIETY

Bill Zavarello remembers how uncomfortable he was as a child when his great-uncle was present at family gatherings. Though friendly, his uncle's speech and mannerisms marked him as different.

Bill recalls, "That was my first close exposure to someone with developmental disabilities, and it was from a position of fear."

As an adult living in Adams Morgan, Bill decided to start sitting on his porch in the evenings to get to know his neighbors. It wasn't long before core people and assistants from Ontario House made overtures of friendship. Bill knew that to let them into his life he would have to deal with the insecurities and fear he still harbored. He also knew it was time to take that step.

Over time Bill has discovered what we all find at L'Arche: people who have intellectual disabilities are great teachers and friends who can help us grow if we are open to reciprocal relationships.

"In my heart, whatever discomfort I had evaporated. I became completely open to loving these people," Bill said.

This is how L'Arche changes society, one person at a time, with an invitation to love and friendship.

Eileen Schofield, Bill Zavarello, and Mo Higgs enjoy being neighbors.

Photo: Bethany Keener